Prostate Cancer Webinar

Studies have shown Black men are at higher risk of prostate cancer than other men. If prostate cancer runs in your family, screening should start as early as 40.

Prostate cancer begins when cells in the prostate grow out of control and spread to other parts of the body. As the cancer grows, tumors can form and cause symptoms. However, you might not always experience symptoms. But if the cancer continues to grow, you may experience difficulty urinating, blood in the urine or semen, persistent pain the back, hips or pelvis, or erectile dysfunction.

Given the impact of prostate cancer in our communities, it is vital for Black men to learn the facts and make the commitment to get screened on a regular basis.

Join The Balm In Gilead for real talk about the role families and faith organizations can play to ensure that Black men receive appropriate screening and treatment for prostate cancer. Attend the Talk That Talk webinar on Tuesday, June 27 at 7pm ET.
